

JENNIFER S. BARBER

Professor of Sociology · University of Michigan
jebarber@umich.edu · rds1.psc.isr.umich.edu

I am a social demographer and family sociologist. My work focuses on the motivational pathways linking desires, intentions, and behaviors. I am particularly interested in how young women's immediate social context – intimate relationships – shapes their desire for pregnancy and related decisions about sex and contraceptive use through influence, coercion, and force. I am also interested in intensive longitudinal data collection and the analytic methods for such data.
