ADMINISTRATIVE EXPERIENCE

Associate Vice President for Faculty & Belonging/AVPFB (June 2022-Present)

The AVPFB serves as a senior leader within the Office of the Vice President for Diversity, Equity, and Multicultural Affairs (OVPDEMA) and reports directly to the Vice President.

Responsibilities:

- Provide university-wide vision for the recruitment, retention, and recognition of underrepresented/minoritized faculty.
- Develop methods of oversight and offer support for innovative initiatives and services provided by individual units across schools and campus, including initiatives housed within OVPDEMA.
- Review climate surveys and other data to report trends and address concerns of underrepresented/minoritized faculty.
- Meet with partners in minority-serving institutions and higher-education adjacent organizations, associations, and councils.
- Engage in research and scholarly activity related to faculty diversification and success.
- Serve as representative on various committees and councils.
- Create an infrastructure of awareness, recruitment, and support through:

Initiatives:

- Faculty-to-Faculty (F2F) Network Mentoring Program as mentoring remains one of the most viable tools for professional development.
- Faculty Learning Communities to discuss and advise on racial tensions in the classroom.
- Book and Grant Writing Workshops that provide support for faculty seeking expert advice and resources for completing manuscripts and securing external grants.
- Faculty Connections include a variety of efforts to bring faculty together for informal networking and building community

Founding & Inaugural Director, Center for Research on Race and Ethnicity in Society (CRRES), Indiana University (2012-2014)

Responsibilities:

- Met with Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences to determine budget needs for CRRES.
- Created structure and processes for CRRES.
- Created and manage faculty committees, including recruitment of postdoctoral scholars.
- Met with and support departmental chairs seeking to diversify their units.
- Created opportunities to build a sense of community and belonging.
- Chair Search Committee and assisted in hiring permanent director.

Reviews: “Representing a wide range of perspectives, the articles in this set are provocative and stimulating. They provide an outstanding overview of the current cultural, economic, political, and social forces that impact the life experiences of people of color in America. In particular, student researchers will find the breadth and depth of the work immensely helpful for projects and reports. A distinguished work of succinct writing, balanced viewpoints, and effective supporting materials. (LJ 2/1/17)” “[A]n excellent reference that outlines contemporary issues and the major fault lines within these issues. Highly recommended for upper- high school and introductory college courses on race or ethnic groups in the U.S.”—Booklist, Starred Review

DATASETS

The College Experience. 1996. Survey data was collected from students across three universities located in the southeastern region of the United States (N=860).

The Intersections of Family, Work, and Health Study. 2004. In-person interviews were completed with 46 adults and telephone interviews were completed among 86 of their family members (N=132). The 46 families represented in this study include an equivalent number of African American, Hispanic (predominantly Mexican American), and non-Hispanic whites.

The Well-Being of Chinese International Students (with Dr. Ethan Michelson). 2019. Data was collected from undergraduate students attending a large midwestern university in the United States (N=35). Before launching the study, the interview guide was reviewed by two consultants whose native language is Chinese. The survey component of the study was presented in English. The in-person interviews were conducted in Chinese by a native Chinese speaker and subsequently translated to English. This project was part of a broader proposal to study the transition into college among a cohort of students, comparing Chinese students who attend college in the U.S. to their peers who remain in China. This project was put on pause in lieu of the COVID-19 pandemic.
